About Me

Hello, I am 19 years old, and I am currently looking for work in the film industry to gain experience, make connections and learn everything about the industry. I want to grow into the industry and learn as much as I can. I have lots of family in the film industry so I grew up in that environment, going to work with them, hearing them talk about it lots and them telling me about different things they get up to and types of film/tv they recommend to me to watch and learn from. My Father is a high end producer who works on all the biggest tv advertisements, my Uncle a film director with films featuring on Amazon Prime, and my brother a 1st/2nd assistant director, and of course along with that I know lots of their colleagues some of whom have become good family friends, I also studied Film and Photography at A-Level so I have creative, analytical knowledge to go along in that aspect along with the film I've watched over the years. I love film history too, It's a hobby to watch any film/tv but I think its essential to have knowledge of some of the older types of film too. I'm more than happy, willing and skilled to work as a team or if required alone as well. I also possess a valid UK driving licence.

I have only recently broke into the Film industry, and I am in love with it, I've completed three music videos, one photoshoot, and one advertisement thus far as a Floor runner, during the PinkPantheress music video I was tasked with being in charge of the audio playback. When on set I've been entrusted with big tasks considering how inexperienced I am, and I was given high praise each time and I'm determined to keep this level and continue with my film making career and see where it takes me. I'm learning so fast and I know I'll continue to grow in this industry.

Communication

Playing competitive sports throughout my life I've learned communication is key to succeeding, over the years I have learned to communicate as a team, and I believe that working as a collective is better and more effective than working individually and divided, if the team is working as a collective, bigger and improved things can be achieved more efficiently. Also working in large and small companies alike I've learnt how to do so in the workplace and in different working environments.

Abilities & skills

I am confident in saying I possess a multitude of different skillsets and abilities, one of those abilities is to learn different skills and abilities at a very fast rate which I pride myself on. Some are more natural to me than others but I believe that if you work hard enough and put the time and consistency into them you will eventually get it and become good at that thing, some important soft skills I'm good at are leading and following, this may sound contradictory, but, I believe that the best way to lead is to learn how to follow first-hand, knowing what its like to be lead gives you the best aspects of leadership because when the time comes when you need to take the lead, you know what makes things easier for the people and how to motivate them, as well knowing when to follow someone and when to take the lead is an important trait I believe, in my current and previous jobs I have not had much opportunity to take leadership as they have been entry level jobs and leaders are already in place and I understand it takes time for trust to build and these things have to nourish. Time management and problem solving are other skills I pride myself on, time management is key for any enterprise and problem solving is self explanatory. I've been told I have a strong attention to detail when working and keeping adaptable is one of my favourite assets at my disposal.
